Mark di Suvero

Outdoor Installations in the Boroughs of
New York City
Whitney Museum of American Art
November 13, 1975—February 8, 1976

For Lady Day
Battery Park, Lower Manhattan

The Whitney Museum of American Art is pleased to present the first museum retrospective of the sculpture of Mark di Suvero from November 13, 1975, through February 8, 1976. James Monte is Guest Curator and Pamela Adler is Exhibition Coordinator. Doris C. Freedman is Special Consultant for Sculpture in the Urban Environment.

As an extension of the exhibition in the Whitney Museum, major works have been installed in outdoor locations in the five boroughs of New York City. This effort to show di Suvero's work as completely as possible has developed into the largest exhibition organized for an American sculptor in the United States. This project could not have been accomplished without the enthusiastic cooperation of the City of New York through Mayor Abraham D. Beame; Edwin L. Weisl, Jr., formerly the Administrator for the Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Administration; Alexander Wirin, now Acting Administrator; and Patrick B. McGinnis, Deputy Commissioner, Department of Cultural Affairs, Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Administration.

This exhibition has been made possible with public funds from the National Endowment for the Arts and the New York State Council on the Arts, through the Municipal Art Society, as well as support from the Cultural Council Foundation. Seatrain Shipbuilding Yards in Brooklyn generously provided a working space for di Suvero. so that sculptures could be reassembled and new works completed. In addition, Tishman Realty and Construction Company and Consolidated Edison provided grants of aid by making available the use of trucks and cranes in connection with transportation and installation of works.

We are sincerely grateful to the unusually large number of generous individuals whose cooperation and support have made possible the exhibition of Mark di Suvero's sculpture in the Whitney Museum and in the public locations throughout New York City.

Outdoor Sites

Bronx: Bronx Zoo, Joyce Kilmer Park, New York Botanical Gardens; Brooklyn: Prospect Park, Cadman Plaza; Manhattan: Battery Park, Conservatory Garden, Dag Hammerskjöld Plaza, Lincoln Center Plaza, Seagram Building Plaza; Queens: Astoria Park, Flushing Meadow Park; Staten Island: Silver Lake Park.

Are Years What? (For Marianne Moore)
On the Peninsula next to the Great Lake in Prospect Park, Brooklyn

XV

Joyce Kilmer Park, Bronx off the Grand Concourse opposite Bronx Borough Hall

Mother Peace
Cadman Plaza and Tillary Street, Brooklyn

"The 51st State," Channel 13, Thursdays at 9 P.M., will present a 10-minute segment on the outdoor installations of Mark di Suvero's sculpture on either November 13 or November 20, 1975.

In February, on a date to be announced, the Whitney Museum will premiere a film about Mark di Suvero by Barbara Rose and François de Menil.

A slide presentation documenting the process of installation at each outdoor site, organized with the assistance of Doris C. Freedman, is presented continuously at the Whitney Museum. Current information concerning outdoor site locations is available at the Museum.

Photographs by Pedro Guerrero

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2013

http://archive.org/details/markdisuverooutd1621disu